LANZHOU, China, March 17 -- A group of Tibetan college students, heads downcast, sat silently in the middle of a soccer field Monday as nervous officials, teachers and plainclothes security officers watched from the sidelines. One official walked onto and off the field, pressing the students to return to their dormitories.

Tibetans describe continuing unrest

Tibetans taking part in and affected by the continuing unrest have contacted the BBC News website to describe their experiences.

ANONYMOUS TIBETAN, HUANGYAN COUNTY, ABUJA, SICHUAN PROVINCE, CHINA

“I am inside a ambulance right now. The telephone landlines have all been cut off. Just one minute ago [1345 GMT] there was a big commotion. The monks outside the monastery were shouting: 'Long Live the Dalai Lama!'

This morning the students of a middle school went out and protested. There were arrests
